I also have worked on many documentaries including several for World Vision in Bangladesh, Thailand and Honduras. I recorded and post-produced “Real Food of China” a 13 part series filmed thru-out China.

Since leaving University in 1979 I have been consistently employed in Sound Recording work. From 1979 - 1982 I was employed at Radio Pacific starting with on air production then becoming responsible for the producing of recorded programs and commercials. I left there in 1982 to join Genesis Sound Studios which was associated with a video production facility. I was involved with the design and building of their new studios becoming a full time engineer with them after this. During my time as an engineer I was involved in location recording for TV commercials and documentaries as well as the post-production of these programs. In 1984 I helped design and build new studios for Echo Park Studios and in 1987 became Manager. In 1989 I joined Television Projects in Melbourne -Australia designing a new video and sound post-production facility for them returning at the end of 1989 to pursue a freelance career in location film and TV sound both as a sound recordist and as a boom operator.

As can be seen I have considerable experience with a diverse range of projects and people. My years of work have taught me how to work in a large team as with a feature film crew and also in small team situations such as documentaries where it may be myself and a cameraman.
