My background training came from working on the prime-time TV show 'Shortland Street' for 50 hours a week and shooting an average of 30 minutes a day. Through that time I have developed my skill as a multi-camera and location camera operator. I have also worked hard with the Steadicam using the rig regularly and enjoy the challenges and opportunities that it presents. Since going freelance I have enjoyed expanding my skillset working across a broad range of productions including drama, TVC, music video, live television, reality TV and EPKs. I pride myself in my ability to problem solve efficiently while offering creative solutions in a fast turn around shooting environment and look forward to establishing myself further in the industry working with like-minded and talented crew.
